

Banak (Virola)

Banak comes from the Amazon Basin of Southern and Northern Brazil. This Heartwood is a golden brown with shades of pink to a deep red brown, while the Sapwood reflects a crème or tan color. The luster is low to medium with a coarse texture and a straight grain. Banak Lumber works well with hand and machine tools and produces a fine finish. This lumber glues easily, and cuts smoothly into veneers. It works perfectly in making furniture, and is great for light construction and general carpentry. Banak is exotic but practical.

Para Para

Para Para comes from the Para Rubber tree in the Amazon Basin. This lumber is a pale yellow to white in coloring, and with exposure, becomes a light brown with a pink tone. Para Para holds a straight, fine uniform texture and a medium luster. This wood saws effortlessly for easy construction of furniture, cabinetwork, and flooring.
